My scripture reading for the day was Psalm 30, a song of gratitude for deliverance. I was especially drawn to verses 11-12 that say You (Lord) have turned my mourning into dancing; you have taken off my sackcloth and clothed me with joy, so that my soul may praise you and not be silent. O Lord my God, I will give thanks to you forever. I like the idea of being clothed with joy and I needed to hear it as I had just received word of the deaths of a couple of acquaintances. I have also recently learned of church members who have lost loved ones. These are not personal losses to me, but the deaths have been numerous of late.

I needed to hear that God clothes us with joy. I am grateful for this promise, but I know that joy is not as easy as getting dressed in the morning. The loss of a loved one is difficult to work through and there are times when we wonder if the joy God wants to clothe us in has gotten lost in the laundry! My devotional reading for the day reminded me that even Jesus had days like this. Jesus experienced the depth of life as we do, but he remained faithful through a steadfast prayer life.

The core question of Jesus' prayers (and ours) is one of trust. When we ask God for anything we are putting our trust in the love and power of God to not only cloth us with joy, but to set the world right, to make things better. Richard Rohr writes that the question "is God to be trusted?" is the great question the human race is asking at the most basic level. Rohr goes on to say that "the answer we hear from Jesus' life, death and resurrection is "yes, God is on your side. Yes, God is more for you than you are for yourself."

I hope you believe that God is more for you than you are for yourself. This idea tells me that while God wants to clothe us with joy, God is also working from the inside out. We can thus grieve the death of a loved one honestly and yet be comforted, joyful even, in knowing that death has been swallowed up in victory (I Cor. 15:54). I am sorry for the sting of death that many people carry these days but in the spirit of Psalm 30, I will not be silent in my faith that the joy of God being for us is greater than the pain that is presses against us.

Peace,
David

Our Friends of Jesus softball game is one of my favorite church activities. We have been fortunate enough to have good weather most years, enjoyed good food, and the Friends of Jesus have experienced a wonderful time. Turnout could be a little stronger, but it is difficult for folks (especially working families) to arrive by 5:00.

The challenging part of the event, as with most missional events, is collecting enough volunteers to make the game and cookout fun and safe for all. We are tweaking a few things this year, but we still need folks to help set things up, help with the game, help serve food, and help clean up. Please let me know if you would be willing.

Beyond the game, the Friends of Jesus class is in need of help. If you feel you're being led, or if you simply don't have a class you feel at home in, please consider visiting the Friends of Jesus class. You'll be loved and welcomed, which is a large portion of what you likely want in a Sunday School class anyway.

There is also a wonderful opportunity available to work with special needs children. Camp Puzzle Piece, for 1st-6th grade children, is July 1st and 2nd this year and volunteers are again needed for rotations, supervision, and other tasks. Please see Morgan Miller or Quinton Frederick if you are willing to help.

Community Café has openings for the third Saturdays of July, August, November, and December. Our Baptist Women could use help (see Dean Kinlaw). It is almost time to sign up to help with VBS (see Erin).

We as a church do a lot. We could do more but our priority for now needs to be recruiting enough help to handle our current obligations. As Jesus taught, "the harvest is plentiful but the workers are few."

Doug

CHILDREN'S CORNER

For the past few weeks in the Collier household, we've had a new routine on Sunday and Monday nights: watching American Idol. We hadn't watched the show in years, but when we found out that Walker Burroughs, son of Passport co-founders David and Colleen Burroughs, would be on the show, there was no way we were going to miss it! Walker is an incredibly talented college student who is genuinely kind and humble. (His response to Katy Perry's declaration that he was top 10 material was "good heavens!")

It was a source of joy to watch Walker progress each week through auditions, Hollywood Week, and beyond. He made it all the way to the live shows and the top 8 before his run ended this past Sunday. (I and many of my Passport/CBF friends agree that it was an unjust end!) I won't protest having more free time on those evenings; still, I will miss tuning in to see Walker on the screen and cheering him on.

At times I briefly felt guilty for making that show a priority. As I think about it, though, I'm glad I did. In a time when turning on the TV results in a bombardment of talking heads, scary news reports, and lots of blaming and pointing fingers, it's been a pleasant change to find JOY in what's on the screen. It's okay to find pockets of joy and seize hold of them. It's okay to appreciate and support a good thing happening for a good person. It's not an escape or denial of some of the more difficult things; rather, it's a way to hold the fullness of life and its complicating and contradictory experiences all together.

It reminds me of a quote from Brian Andreas I have displayed in my office: "Anyone can slay a dragon, he told me, but try waking up every morning and loving the world all over again. That's what takes a real hero."

Let's strive to be heroes – heroes who both slay dragons and embrace joy in life.

Tuesday Coffee Shop Bible Study 4 Gospels

Tuesdays in May — 3:45 to 5:00 p.m.
7th-12th Graders

This is a more academically structured course for students who want to know more about the gospels. It is a great option for anyone planning to take Bible courses in college. We will have fun (and snacks) but this is for mature youth who genuinely want to learn.
